Official ACC answers: Leaderboard fixing and reply to #AuroraAlien

Date: May 31st, 2079

Aurora Control Center confirms that an internal unit manipulated the ranking systems by injecting more than 3,600 fraudulent Missions Credits (MC) entries.

A review and correction procedure is underway, and the affected access credentials have been suspended.

The ACC reaffirms that the ongoing scientific discovery is documented by measured facts, not by rumors.

Fact-checking Q&A

Q1. What happened with the internal ranking ?

A communications unit falsified submission data in order to artificially increase its score.

Q2. How did you detect the issue ?

By detecting abnormalities in the submissions, duplicatas and validation metadata.

Q3. Are the 3600 MC confirmed ?

Yes. This volume corresponds to the entries identified as non-compliant after an initial review.

Q4. What link can be made between this incident and #AuroraAlien ?

No scientific link has been established. However, the timeline shows that the internal fraud and the rise of the rumor appeared in parallel.

Q5. Who could've had an interest in letting #AuroraAlien spread so quickly, and why didn't the ACC shut down this rumor immediately if you really had total control of the situation?

A rumor cannot be switched off like a light switch, and we're not mind mages, so we do what we do best : we're dismantling it through facts, consistency, and repetition. That is what we are doing, and what we'll continue to do so.

Q6. Is the CCA hiding a life form?

No. The verified facts concern a crystalline structure of unknown origin and the associated measurements, not a claim of that kind.

Q7. What does the ACC say about this rumor?

Nothing. The available data do not allow the conclusion it claims so vehemently.

Q8. Has the CCA's credibility been affected?

Yes, temporarily, by the internal fraud and disinformation. That is precisely why the response must be transparent and rigorous.

Q10. What is the CCA's official position now?

The CCA communicates only on validated data, corrects internal abuses, and rejects all speculation.

Short statement

The ACC has identified internal fraud that affected the internal rankings and immediately launched the necessary corrective measures to fix the issue.

The #AuroraAlien rumor is, at this stage anyway, not based on any verified facts, and we invite everyone to rely only on confirmed information provided to you by the ACC or official news.

The ACC will continue to communicate regularly, transparently, and with documentation, in order to keep the public informed of developments in the coming days.
